Application Guidelines for International Students (Fall 2026 & Spring 2027)

I. Accordance

This guideline is established in accordance with the Ministry of Education's "Regulations Regarding International Students Undertaking Studies in Taiwan", the university's "Admission Application Regulations for Foreign Students", the implementation guidelines for foreign student admissions of each department and institute, and relevant regulations.

II. Open Programs and Admission Quota

A. Admission Quota: 163 for Bachelor's program(including 2 for School of Medicine), 70 for Master's program, 11 for Ph.D. program. Unfilled quotas from the fall semester will be carried over to the spring semester.

B. The following table lists the departments, institutes, degree programs, languages of instruction, and application rules for the 2026-2027 academic year that are open to international students:

1. Language of Instruction & Requirement for Language Proficiency

- When applying for departments which have Chinese as the language of instruction, please submit a Chinese Proficiency Test report equivalent to Test of Chinese as a Foreign Language (TOCFL) A2 level or higher. If the courses from your previous degrees program are conducted in Chinese, or you majored in the Chinese language, please provide a relevant document.
- When applying for departments which have English as the language of instruction (including those with sufficient EMI courses to fulfill graduation requirements), please submit an English Proficiency Test report equivalent to CEFR B1 or higher. Those who have a nationality in countries where English is the official or common language do not have to submit. If you obtain your previous degrees in English-speaking countries, or the courses from your previous degrees program are conducted in English, please provide a relevant document.

2. Some departments, institutes, or degree programs may have different requirements. Please refer to each unit for the Chinese/English proficiency requirement.
